J. P. MORGAN PAID N. Y. LIFE PROFITS TO ANDY HAMILTON

George W. Perkins Also Must Explain Why $40,000 in Profits on New York Life Loan Was Paid to Him.

Up to George W. Perkins:
Profit of $40,000 on a $939,000 loan made to a Boston firm by the New York Life; check sent to the insurance company and cash turned over to G. W. Perkins, with no accounting on the books of the company.

Up to J. Pierpont Morgan:
Profits of $60,000 on U. S. Steel Syndicate belonging to the New York Life, and paid by J. P. Morgan & Co. to Judge "Andy" Hamilton, handler of the New York Life's "Yellow Dog" fund.

That George W. Perkins, Vice-President of the New York Life Insurance Company and partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, last year took a profit of $40,000 which belonged to the New York Life for a loan of $939,000 it had negotiated in Boston, and that J. Pierpont Morgan in 1902 paid to "Andy" Hamilton $60,000 out of profits which the New York Life had made in Steel were facts dragged out of a clerk of the insurance company to-day at the Legislative Insurance Committee's inquiry.

Morgan must go on the witness-stand and tell why he was dealing with Hamilton, the "yellow dog" handler and fugitive, and Perkins must unburden to the probe of Chief Examiner Charles E. Hughes what right he had to divert money belonging to the New York Life Insurance Company.

Milton M. Mattison, a dummy loan clerk, who figured in the early part of the life insurance investigation, was the person who bore witness as to Perkins's and Morgan's dealings to-day. He said that it was he who paid over the $40,000 to Perkins. At first he told Mr. Hughes that he didn't know what Perkins had done with the money. Then he recalled that he had heard that the $40,000 had been put into the "Nyle fund" of the New York Life, of which Perkins is the trustee, and which is used for rewarding agents for "good business."

It was in this way that Hughes probed out of Mattison, who had been a most elusive witness, the details of George Walbridge Perkins's receipt of the $40,000.

Q. Now, do you know of any money of any description payable to the New York Life Insurance Company which have been paid over to third parties in the manner in which this $40,000 went to Mr. Hamilton, or in any manner? A. There probably have been cases.

Q. Tell me what you know of them? A. Will you tell me who your informant is, Mr. Hughes?

Q. I would like you to answer my question, Mr. Mattison. A. What is your question, Mr. Hughes?

Q. You said that you think there have been such cases, and I asked you to tell me what you know of them? A. I know but one case. I have but one case in mind.

Q. What is that? A. A profit on a sort of loan that came to us and paid to a third party.

Q. To whom was it paid? A. Handed to Mr. Perkins.

Q. Mr. George W. Perkins? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the amount of the profit? A. About $40,000, I think.

Q. What was it a profit on? A. A loan.

Q. A loan to whom? A. To a Boston firm, I believe.

Q. What firm? A. Is there a Boston firm of Kinder, Peabody & Co.?

Q. Who made the loan? A. The New York Life Insurance Company.

Q. Was it a loan made within the last few years? A. 1904.

Q. Profits Came in Check.

Q. What was the amount of the loan? A. About $939,000.

Q. And there was about $40,000 profit? A. There was.

Q. How did they come in? A. It came by check, I believe.

Q. To whose order? A. New York Life Insurance Company.

Q. What was done with the check? A.

JUDGES WILL NOT OPEN THE BALLOT BOXES

Amend and Giegerich Send Lawyers to Appellate Division. CAN'T LISTEN TO THEM. Both Declare They Are Too Busy to Take Up Long Arguments.

Real fighting in the courts—the first that has marked the contest between William Randolph Hearst and Mayor McClellan—was the feature to-day in the effort of the Hearst faction, before Supreme Court Justices Amend and Giegerich to secure an order to open the ballot boxes in five election districts in which irregularities have been disclosed by inspection of the tally sheets and the void and protested ballots.

Judge Alton B. Parker, personal counsel for Mayor McClellan, previously mild and acquiescent, became aggressive, and succeeded in so delaying action that the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court must designate positively the justices who shall hear arguments on the ballot box opening motion.

Austen G. Fox, one of the leaders of the Bar of this city, specially summoned to fight for Mr. Hearst, made the assertion in the course of his argument before Justice Amend that the success of Mr. Hearst in obtaining the office of Mayor would be disastrous to him (Mr. Fox) and also to the majority of Mr. Hearst's counsel.

Justice Amend, after hearing arguments from Judge Parker and Mr. Fox, promptly passed the "buck," so to speak, to Justice Giegerich, who immediately and emphatically passed it along to the Appellate Division.

Mr. Fox's statement about his client was not the only sensational feature in the proceeding. Judge Parker accused the Hearst attorneys of bad faith, first in Justice Amend's court, and later in Justice Giegerich's court. He practically accused Mr. Fox of misrepresentation, and the distinguished attorneys stood up and talked at each other in an unending fashion.

McClellan Desires the Truth.

"If Justice Giegerich is to hear this argument and others which will follow along the same lines," declared Judge Parker, "the counting of void and protested ballots must stop. Why? The facts and circumstances indicate that our opponents are willing that Justice Giegerich shall not hurry."

"On the night after the election the paper edited by the relator in this proceeding proclaimed that great frauds had been perpetrated. This assertion was repeated so often and so vigorously that the people were aroused. A meeting was held at which one of counsel for the relator—at least he was referred to as counsel in the published record—pronounced the frauds."

YALE ELEVEN AT LIGHT PRACTICE

After This Football Team to Play Harvard To-Morrow, Goes Automobiling.

HARVARD'S FINAL WORK.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Nov. 24.—A launch ride in Marblehead Bay, with a visit to Baker's Island, occupied a part of the day for the Harvard football squad, which is quartered at the Cliff House here. The day was ideal for the water trip, and it was undertaken at the suggestion of Coach Field and Dr. Nichols, a member of the Harvard Athletic Committee.

At Baker's Island the players snatched through the woods for an hour or two. They returned in time for light signal practice, which will be held during the afternoon.

CHILD BURNED IN AMUSING THE BABY.

Little James Fedom Lighted Matches and Set Clothes Afire—Injuries Fatal.

Five-year-old James Fedom was left in charge of his eighteen-months-old sister in his parents' apartments, at No. 108 Smith street, Brooklyn, to-day, while his mother went to the market. The baby began to howl and to amuse it little Jimmy began to burn matches.

This pleased the infant and also afforded joy to Jimmy, until he set fire to his clothing. The boy fled screaming from the house into the street, after from head to foot. Policeman Max Sherry tore off his coat and wrapped it around the burning boy.

After smothering the flames, the policeman called an ambulance from the Long Island College Hospital, where the child was taken, so badly burned that no hope is held out for his recovery. The fire did not spread in the Fedom apartment, so that the baby girl was not injured.

Judge Worthington pronounced sentence of from one to fourteen years in the Penitentiary on each of his five counts, the same to be concurrent.

TWO DROWNED AND 5 HURT IN EFFORT TO GREET FRIENDS

Boat Puts Out Into the Hudson as Steamer from Italy Comes Up and Is Capsized—Thrilling Rescues from Ship and Pier.

The arrival of the Italian Line steamship Citta di Napoli, fairly overflowing with Italian immigrants, was attended by a tragic scene in mid-stream of the Hudson River this afternoon, when a rowboat containing a score of relatives and friends of the newcomers overturned, dumping its human cargo in the swift-rushing tide.

Though frantic efforts were made to save the drowning men, men leaping into the river from the steamer and from pier heads in the vicinity, two were drowned, and five of those rescued were taken to the Roosevelt Hospital, one with a broken leg and injured internally.

DID MAYOR STALL OFF LOUIS'S VISIT?

Washington Report Says Politicians Timed It to Influence Election.

A telegram from Washington late this afternoon said that the political enemies of Mayor McClellan had arranged to have Prince Louis of Baden visit New York with his British Squadron the week before election and that the Mayor diplomatically stalled the visit off until after election.

The Washington advice said that the object in having Prince Louis of New York before election was to give the cartoonists and others a chance to depict the Mayor's royalty, at that. It was said that the Mayor scented the plot, first appealed to the British Ambassador and then through a friend reached Lord Kitchener, secretary to King Edward, and that King Edward ordered Prince Louis not to appear in New York until after election.

At the Mayor's office this afternoon not much credence was given to the story. Mayor McClellan was not in, but an official speaking for him said that the visit of Prince Louis on Nov. 8 had been arranged at least six weeks ahead and that such an arrangement was made at the Admiralty Office in London after diplomatic correspondence with Washington.
